Create Now! a program that is designed to build self esteem and encourage talent in juvenile offenders held a talent contest on Saturday at Camp Kilpatrick. The program involved 220 at-risk teenage boys who reside at Camp Miller as well as Camp Kilpatrick. Many of these youngsters are housed in the camps due to abuse and neglect or abandonment from the juvenile justice system. Create Now! operates on the belief that through one-on-one mentoring and workshops in screen-writing, dramatic and poetry writing, and song lyrics and video production, they will start to learn to express themselves in a creative manner. For more information on Create Now! call 213-484-8500.

Jill Gurr with Create Now! addresses the group of camp residents who participated.
